

About David Bailey

For the past 10 years, David has been a strategic level advisor and mentor to Boards and owners of professional services and IT services firms, mostly working with organisations going through turnarounds, rapid growth activity or Mergers & Acquisitions exercises. With a prior 24 years as a management consultant operating in some of the world's largest organisations, David's focus is on the business goals and helping Directors, both individually and collectively, to achieve them.

David was President of the MCA in 2005/6 whilst co-owner of Impact Plus, an operational change consulting firm that he sold to Hitachi in 2007. David then led Hitachi Consulting's UK business through rapid growth, both organically and via acquisition, alongside working with Hitachi's Global Consulting Committee and Hitachi's wider European Strategy Board as the Group continued to move from a conglomerate to an integrated solution provider in multiple markets.
